W 2.1: PERSONALIZING THE JOURNEY TO SUCCESS

Anthology

Authentic student engagement is crucial to student success and it begins with recruitment. To foster student success, we must begin with an understanding of who the person is, who they wish to become, their needs and their goals. Learn how to apply truly individualized, personalized communications from prospecting through the student lifecycle.

Establishing success plans at matriculation can lead to greater success. The use of personalized journeys, detailed guidance that is tailored to a student, with the students participation and ownership are critical. Planning must go beyond simple personalized email. Presenting information on outcomes first, even during the recruitment cycle is also proving to be a competitive advantage for institutions. Through analysis of employment and labor data, aligning skills to courses, and including it in the student advising process layers in additional guidance checkpoints.

We do all the heavy lifting, and bring deep data and behavioral science insights to capture your students’ attention right where they spend their time: on websites and social media. In this session, we’ll share examples from our library of over 25k GuidePosts, and walk you through the core methodology and approach. We’ll dig in to results we’ve achieved among new admits, recent stop outs and continuing students at institutions like yours. We partner with you on a no-risk, pay-only-for-results model. And since we can take you live in under 2 weeks, there’s still time to impact your term enrollment numbers for the upcoming start and beyond.

1:00 p.m.-2:00 p.m. W 4.1: WHAT IT’S LIKE TO HAVE DEPRESSION AND ANXIETY: AN ANALOGY
Presenter, Caroline Jens

An estimated 26% of Americans ages 18 and older -- about 1 in 4 adults -- suffers from a diagnosable mental disorder. Depression, anxiety, and other brain disorders affect all of us in some way, either through personal experience or the experience of someone we know. Unfortunately, despite the prevalence of mental disorders in society, openly discussing mental health still hasn’t been normalized. For those who have never experienced depression or anxiety as a mental disorder, and who do not have someone close to them with depression or anxiety, it can be hard to understand exactly what it is and how it manifests. Through the use of an analogy that most of us can (hopefully) relate to, this presentation will attempt to explain what it is like for those of us who suffer from depression and anxiety.

W 4.2: USING SOCIAL MEDIA TO IMPROVE CONTINUING STUDENT RETENTION
Presenters, Jacki Briggs

It was already mid-July and despite extensive outreach, continuing students from Spring 2021 had yet to register for Fall. We decided to apply a new approach that had recently demonstrated promise with other groups of students. The UW Whitewater team partnered with Motimatic to drive registrations by reaching students online, directly in their social media feeds. We delivered supportive posts to our continuing students on a daily basis, helping them navigate the process and feel good about their choice to continue their degree journey at UW Whitewater in the fall. We exceeded registration goals in 10 days, and generated even more registrations with a follow-up project. Attend this session to hear Jackie Briggs, Director of Admissions, share more about UW Whitewater’s strategy to increase registrations during this unprecedented time.

W 5.2: ENTERING THE U.S. HIGHER EDUCATION SYSTEM AS A TRANSFER STUDENT: WHY IS IT SO COMPLICATED?

Presenter, Jennifer Singer

Have you ever tried to advise a student transferring into the U.S. education system in mid-bachelor's degree study from a university outside the US? Their expectations versus reality rarely align, and it can be challenging to identify why. If the student has already completed two years at their previous institution, doesn't that mean they will start in the third year of the U.S. program? Why is there a difference between the number of credits that will transfer in and the number of credits that apply to the degree requirements? Let's explore how differences in education systems make transferring complicated. We begin with the basics and then review two cases: one regular transfer student, and one student coming through an institutional partnership.

F 2.1: EMPLOYEE ENGAGEMENT: TAKING SURVEY RESULTS AND CREATING MEANINGFUL ACTION

Presenters, Ingrid Nuttall, Jamie Pettit, and James Harms

The University of Minnesota engages in an employee engagement survey every other year. The survey results provide units with data to help understand the areas in which teams are thriving as well as where they need attention and action. The Office of the Registrar has recently engaged in activities at the management level and with staff to hone in on specific areas of focus to create better engagement in the office. This presentation will cover the process used to refine our scope and discuss the areas of opportunity that staff are most keen on improving -- meaningful communication in a remote setting and better meeting management. This process is still in the early stages so we look to have an engaging discussion with session participants to also learn from what others are doing to promote employee engagement.
